

Net neutrality is for the best. Keep the rules the same, do not remove the Title II rules. ISPs having full control is good only for them, while it is worse for over a hundred million Americans. In addition to that, considering the oligopoly of internet providers, the capitalistic approach is not viable.